OPPOSED TO CAPRIVI.

Against the Army Bill.

CONDITIONS MADE FOR SUPPORT.

What Will Secure the Vote of the Anti-Semites?

POOR NOT TO BE TAXED MORE.

Berlin, July 8.—At today's session of the reichstag Herr Groeber, centrist, who in the last reichstag voted in opposition to the army bill, spoke against the new measure in the name of the centre party. The centrists, he declared, were firmly opposed to the bill, and all the newly-elected representatives of the party were pledged against it. From a military point of view the bill was needless, and from an economic source weeks ago. She has been doing an enormous business, especially carrying horses, carriages and general freight of the Bar Harbor cottagers. She left Bar Harbor Thursday at about 1 o'clock bound for New York, with a few passengers from the provinces and a light freight, and was away off to the southward of Mount Desert Rock, which is twenty-five miles from Bar Harbor, when her propeller broke, completely disabling her. newly-elected representatives of the party were pledged against it. From a military point of view the bill was needless, and from an economical standpoint it was ruinous. It would be better for the government to enter into an organic federation with Austria than to increase the army superfluously. The present government game to secure a mousetrap majority was an undignified one. Doubtless, if the house knew how the government intended to cover the extra cost involved by the measure it would not be able to do to the measure it would not be able to do to the measure it would not be able to do to the measure it would not be able to do to the measure it would not be able to do to the measure it would not be able to do to the measure it would not be able to do to the measure it would not be able to do to the measure it would not be able to do to the measure it would not be able to do to the measure it would not be able to do to the measure it would not be able to the measure it would not be able to the measure it was seen just off the Cranberry ing about in a light breeze. St ure it would not be able to find a majority. IMPOSING CONDITIONS ON THE GOVERNMENT.

Herr Boeckel, anti-Semite, said that the members of that party would vote for the bill only on the condition that the costs be covered by taxes enacted only from the rich. To secure anti-Semite support Chancellor von Caprivi must declare that the government would not increase the indirect food tax.

Herr Boeckel declared that the anti-Semites would strive to abolish the possibility of heaping up enormous fortunes like those possessed by the Rothschilds and Bleichroeders. He added that the present bill must be the absolute conclusion of the increase of the army. If it were not emigration from Germany would Chancellor von Caprivi reiterated the statement he made yesterday that at present it was impossible to give the details of the financial plan to cover the increased expenditure that would be increased through manifest the government. incurred through granting the government's demands. He asked Herr Boeckel to trust to the government's honesty and promised to relieve the weaker shoulders of the burden of increased taxation. Only the well-to-do, he said, would be called upon to pay the new taxes.

The prolonged illness of Justice Blatchford made his death not unexpected, and there is consequently little gossip over his successor. names of both Secretaries Gresham and Carlisle are mentioned, but though no official statement has been authorized, it can be stated with considerable assurance that the place will not be offered to either of these, and that if it was neither would socept it.

There are two names of praminent and distinguished lawyers which, it is believed, will be at least thoughtfully considered by the President in nominating a successor. They are Frederick C. # DISABLED OFF MT. DESERT. WHOLESALE DEALERS MILITARY DIVISIONS. AFTER THE STORM.

The Subject of Their Re-Establishment Again Being Agitated.

It Has Been Discussed Everywhere but at Army Headquarters-Views That Are Held There.

The subject of the re-establishment of military divisions is again being agitated and Gen. Schofield is generally credited with being be- A Town Filled With the Dead and hind the scheme. A STAR reporter investigated the matter today and ascertained that although such a proposition has been discussed in the newspapers and at outlying posts it did not originate at army headquarters, and in fact has not even been seriously considered there. The only proposition bearing any relation to the grant perfect immunity to those dealers holding licenses under the old law. In discharging McDonough Judge Miller stated that it appeared to him that, under the decision of the Court of Appeals in the Busch case, sustaining the old licenses, there could be no prosecution of those dealers holding such licenses.

When questioned today by a STAR reporter. Judge Miller stated that he was still of the opinion rendered by him Thursday. But he further stated that he was examining more places a military importance not now enjoyed, but none of these plans has received the in-dorsement of Gen. Schofield.

GEN. SCHOPIELD'S VIEWS. That officer has been repeatedly announced as favoring the establishment of two or three he does not regard such a plan as at all prac-ticable in the present condition of the service. In his opinion the military service can be better administered under the present system of departments than with two or three divisions. If the latter system is to be restored there should be no less than four divisions, viz: The Atlantic, the Pacific and the northern and southern Missouri. Any other geographical division would be inequitable, according to military experts, as with three or less divisions one must necessarily be unprepartionately. one must necessarily be unproportionately greater in importance than the others.

THE DIVISIONS OF THE MISSOURL. The northern and southern portions of the former division of the Missouri, commanded since the war by Gen. Sherman and Gen. Sheridan, have become so far separated in their mil-itary interests that it is no longer possible to confine them within one division. When that division was established the military operations division was established the military operations for the control of the Indians extended over a vast territory, then forming our western frontier, and it was then necessary that the operation should be under the control of one general. Those operations, however, resulted in the subjugation of the Indians and the settlement by whites of the present states of Nebraska, Kansas and the territories to the west. The Indian tribes were repeated in this way to that it is It Has Excited Considerable Interest Among

The announcement in yesterday's Star that the Secretary of the Treasury was seriously considering the proposition to redeem the various outstanding forms of notes and the close of the present license year, November 1 next, and that herefore the threats of the District Commissioners that dealers no longer possible for them to have concert of action, thereby doing away with the previous necessity of having the troops operating against trict, it appeared, was at the mercy of such dealers, and the only remedy seemed to be prompt action on the part of Congress at the extra session next month. mander. Cherokee county. The storm originated near Quimby and followed a path due east for about eight miles. Near the place where the storm first took on the characteristics of a cyclone it struck the house of Joe Wheeler, a prosperous farmer, whose family were in the cellar. Mrs. Wheeler had her arms about her aged mother, Mrs. O. M. Lester, who was instantly killed by being struck in the side by a wagon spoke. The house and barns all about were completely demolished and the fields were full of dead cattle. The large iron bridge across the river was lifted from its piers and thrown into the stream. The evolune piers and thrown into the stream. The cyclone swept a clean path through a number of superb farms, whose buildings were completely wrecked.

The first and most dreadful casualty occurred the winter wheat crop. They now promise at the home of Samuel Bugh. On the way to Slater's place, half a mile east, Luhr, the eldest daughter, was blown eighty rods from the house and had her right leg twisted off at the thigh, and was found two niles away. Ida Johnson, a domestic, was also killed and Burt Slater, a young man, was so seriously in-jured that he will die.

Marion Johnson was killed on his farm, being blown out of the cellar in which he and two daughters had taken refuge. The children were found to be saved by throwing their arms bout each other.

But the evidence indicates immense and widespread destruction outside Pomeroy and Fonda, although it was greatest there. A second train left here yesterday afternoon with more physicians for Pomeroy.

Citizens are preparing for relief work and generous subscriptions will be made here at once.

ON STORM LAKE.

Those on the relief train from Sioux City yesterday saw the first evidence of the terrible work of Thursday night's cyclone after passing Strom Lake. The northwest shore of the lake is heavily wooded, but a quarter of a mile of it had been shaven as where as if by a woodman's axe. On the opposite shore, three miles further on, were the runns of the Buena Vista farm, where sixty head of valuable stock were destroyed.

From Storm Lake east the press correspondent could easily keep in sight the path of the storm. It had pursued a course directly parallel to the Illinois Central line and about half a mile south of it. That half mile saved much destruction of property and general loss of life, as there are a property and general loss of life, as there are a series of little towns along the line which the path of the storm barely missed, but the scar it left in the country beyond could be plainly seen, with the wrecks of homes and farms and storm swerved slightly to the north, just enough to take in all the south side of the town. Where it was are now heaps of bricks and acres of splinters, with clothing, pro-visions and furniture, the remnants scattered between. So definite was the course of the storm that the south wall of a brick drug store was torn out, leav-ing the rest of the building intact and the show cases within without a crack: so definite, too, it was that something like fifty perished in its path through the town.

**BCENES AT THE MORGUE.**

Pomeroy was a place of coffins and confusion yesterday. No one knew the living or the dead. The former roamed the streets with little apparent thought or organized effort, and the latter lay impassive upon the tables of an old billiard room. Child and gray beard lay side by side with the unwashed ice piled above the bloody sheets with which they were covered. A young man of eighteen lay with a large splinter piercing him from shoulder to thigh, another had been crushed against the side of a building with such force as to leave him a mere shapeless mass of bone and flesh. One woman lay in a rear room with her head by her side until her right limb should be found and the shattered remains intered in one package; one lady was struck by the flying sections of a roof and literally of the literally appointed in this state, but is noted for his fearless and unpartisan conduct on the bench.

Judge Gary, who belongs to the Tillman faction, has granted a temporary writ of prohibition in Richland county restraining the board of Medican Receiving and filing the bond of bone and flesh. One woman lay in a rear room with her head by her side until her right limb should be found and the shattered remains in-terred in one package; one lady was struck by the flying sections of a roof and literally the flying sections of a roof and literally of control from receiving and filing the board of Madison Roach, recently appointed in this case. DUPED DICTATOR BARRIOS. A Guatemalan Inventor Breaks Faith With

SAN FRANCISCO, July 8 .- President Barrice, lictator of Guatemala, has declared G. Santaana, a young Guatemalan inventor, a traite to that republic, and death awaits him should he fall into the clutches of Barrios.

Santalana is now believed to be in hiding in this city, where he recently arrived to secure an American patent on an ingenious device for measuring the distance across canyons or other impassable places. He called his device a telemeter, and Barrios furnished funds for his trip to get the patent, foreseeing that there would be money in the venture. The inventor obtained his patent, but instead of securing it in the name of Barrios and the Guatemalan government, as he was instructed, he took out the patent personally, and then sold it for a good lump sum to the Salvadorean consul at this port.

Barrios had expected to send Santalana to Europe to float his invention, and while the young inventor was here Barrios furnished coin for his entertainment at a leading hotel. Hence his wrath over Santalana's treachery and his threat to have him shot should he ever venture home again.
